

Estate Recovery Program

Operated by the Office of Recoveries and Fraud Investigations, the Estate Recovery Program files claims against the estates of deceased Medicaid recipients. This helps the Department of Social Services recover the cost of Medicaid benefits it has provided to those recipients.

This program was established in 1994 to bring South Dakota into compliance with federal requirements. The state is authorized to recover the cost of benefits provided to recipients after July 1, 1994, for the following services:

Nursing facility services*

Home and community-based services

Intermediate care facility services for the mentally handicapped*

Other institutional services*

Hospital services*

Prescription drug services

* For all recipients

 For recipients 55 years of age or older

This program was expanded in 1997 to include recovery from the estate of a surviving spouse. After the death of a surviving spouse, claims may be filed against that person's estate to recover the Medicaid benefits listed above that were received by the Medicaid recipient.

If the surviving spouse wishes to limit the amount of his or her estate that will be available for reimbursement of medical assistance expenditures, the surviving spouse must file a petition for limitation.

The petition must be made using a form from the Department of Social Services (DSS). The petition must be filed with the department within six months of the Medicaid recipient's death.

If a petition is filed, the Department of Social Services will determine the value of the surviving spouse's estate at the time of the Medicaid recipient's death. The value will limit the amount available to the department for recovery of its Medicaid expenditures on behalf of the Medicaid recipient.

Petitions for limitation are available at local Department of Social Services offices. Forms may also be obtained by contacting:
